

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electrical connection portion between a flow rate detecting element and a circuit board is constructed on a portion of a holder positioned inside a holder insertion aperture. The holder is supported as a cantilever in an external structural member by fixing a base end portion of the holder to the external structural member.